Every atheist has a God given right not to believe in him. I think it was Rupert Sheldrake who pointed out that the mode of atheists' is to rely on one miracle and insist they can explain the rest. The miracle of atheists is that life began without their being a cause. That is a greater miracle than any religion recognizes.,

Personally, atheists don't offend me in the slightest. The ones I know personally are as moral as any religious sorts. I never challenge others with respect to their beliefs because I am not an authority on God.
