The Elite in Retreat

Posted on July 16, 2024 by jamesq

Thinking is discouraged in our society. Once conventional wisdom sinks in, it provides non-thinking, comfortable reasons for adopting one position or another. Thinking in moving pictures always renders more accurate insight.

It is routinely assumed that the elite of the world are united. It seems they are because they look out for one another. The fact is that each elite has his own agenda. Cooperation comes from symbiotic relationship – where they all benefit from supporting one another.

When symbiotic relationships break down, cooperation disappears. Relationships suffer when exogenous events take place. Something like an attempted assassination occurs.... & security agencies get exposed for dishonesty or ineptness. This reduces their value to the elite. Security agencies then, are of no use in carrying out elite agendas. The bias of the media has become obvious so, the media starts panicking in order to straighten up. Censoring others for reasons of profit becomes very difficult, etc. Symbiotic relationships start breaking apart. When this happens, various elites start turning on one another. There is no longer the necessary unity among them, which the public has learned to take for granted. As a result, they start turning on each other.

U.S. intelligence agencies, as tools for the elite are now impotent as tools the elite previously used to control society.... censor.... start wars.... capture markets and so on. This provides an atmosphere where underlings might start blowing their beets or become whistleblowers.

It is a huge mistake to believe billionaires are all buddies with one another, Each one wants more power. They cooperate when it is to their advantage. They turn on each other when cooperation generates no benefits. Who knows how the current situation will play out? Just know that everything will be different from now on. As it is in the U.S. today, hardly a soul believes a word he hears from an official source. What are the elite going to try now that so many chumps have smartened up?
